6. Social Service

Main Office Building(F building) #307 ☎ 509-6528, 6530, 5112

A. What is social service?

Social service is an activity that provides participants an opportunity to feel the sense of community for neighborhood, local community, and country.

It is not an activity only for people or groups who have time and money to spare. For the welfare of the whole society, anyone can join. Of course, make sure that participants don't expect any kind of monetary reward for their services.

B. Why does our world need the social service?

In the past, the social service was just a charity activity based on philanthropy. With the advent of industrialization and urbanization, there have been many unexpected issues like the loss of community spirit and family egoism mainly due to the trends of nuclear families. As a compensatory measure, the importance and necessity of the social work has come forward.

The social service not only solves social issues but is greatly meaningful for the service workers. Interacting with the marginalized people makes participants understand the human dignity, help achieve self-realization, and have practical experience before graduations. Most of all, a little effort can make a change for a better society. Many companies stress social works and ask their employees to join such activities. Social service career has also become an advantage for employment.

Anyone can do this job. But, it is university students that the society greatly wants for detailed and specialized social work.

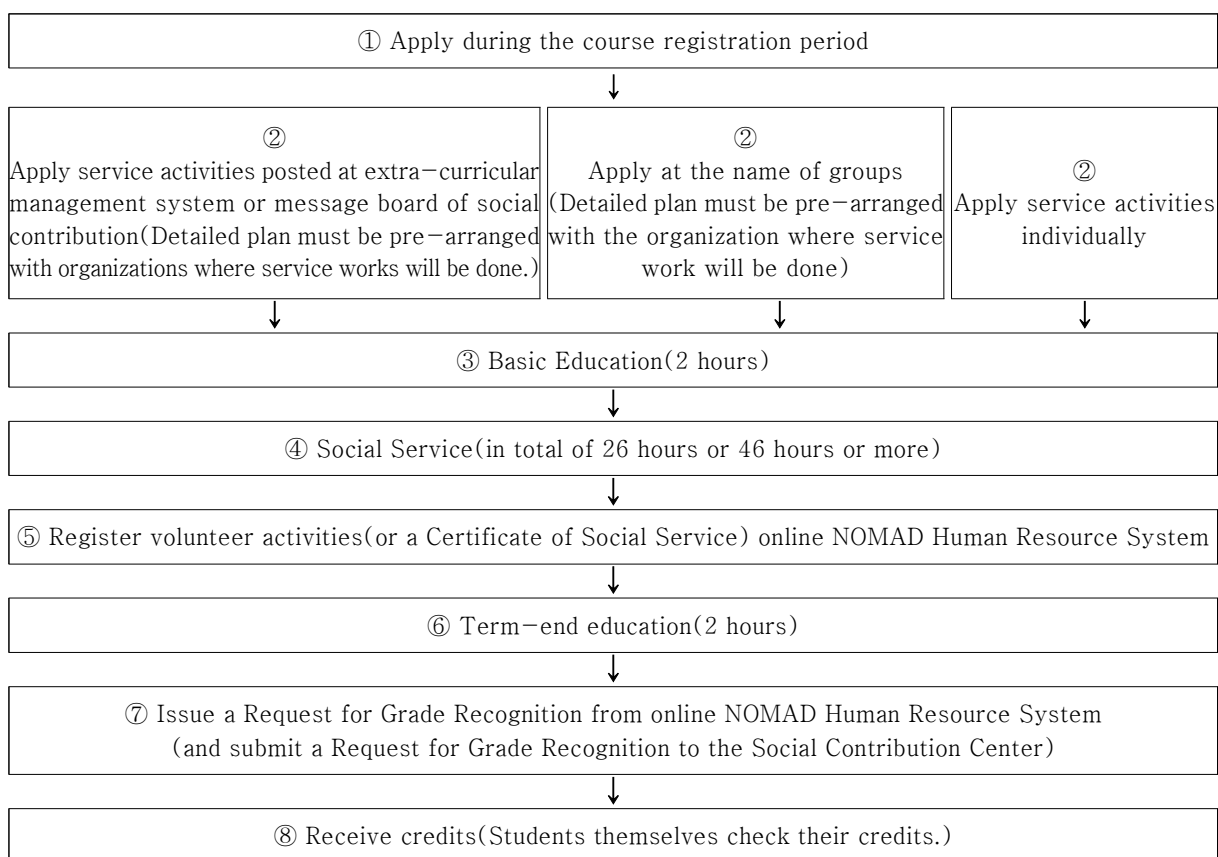

C. Social Service with BUFS

To implement the founding spirit of BUFS, the soul of Christianity and "practice of love," BUFS has initiated social services as part of the love for university, neighbor, and human being.

The period and organizations for services are decided on a voluntary basis. Students can refer to "Outside-curriculum Management System" or "Message Board of Social Contribution Center" for further information.

Social works will be documented in Transcript and will have a preference over scholarship and employment recommendation.

D. Application Procedure

※Other activities that are not posted at the message board are required to get an approval from BUFS in advance.

E. Where do you get information?

- BUFS webpage
- Social Contribution Center at <https://communityservice.bufs.ac.kr/communityservice/>
- Extra-curricular management system

Division of English

■ Educational Goal

The Division aims to develop the English communication capacity, the considerable insight, and the abundant knowledge on humanities to make students professionals who are working in the world community. The education goal can be achieved by developing their English proficiency to use World English in a fluent and correct way and expertise in English, and expanding their knowledge on British and American cultures. In this regard, the Division provides its systemic level–base teaching and learning on practical English and ESP through a track system and innovative teaching methods. The track system includes English Communication Track that trains experts on British and American cultures; English Business Track that trains global talent with practical English, contents and business skills; and The English Interpretation and Translation Track that trains linguistic experts through interpretation and translation theory and practice.

Turkish-Central Asian Languages

■ Educational Objectives

Turkey and five Central Asian countries including Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan located on Eurasian Silk Road have used the same language and formed a single cultural area. The Department of Turkish-Central Asian Languages offers a regional approach to the area to develop Eurasian Vision and also broadens understanding and knowledge of the area.

By studying Turkish-Central Asian language, history and culture in comparison with or linking to Korean studies, students can develop the humanistic understanding of Turkey-Central Asia, a region with similar language and culture with Korea.

In addition, the Department provides the academic and practical information of the area including politics, society and economics and cultivates local management skills through exchanges programs with the countries to nurture professionals contributing to Korean and Turkish-Central Asian relations.

Division of Global Business

■ Educational Goal

Today, borders between individual countries have disappeared across almost all fields including the economy, society and culture. In addition, humans, goods and services, technologies, and culture are freely exchanged. So, people are encountering a change where the times require the international cooperation, in conjunction with global competitiveness. That means the stage of businesses and individuals is not limited to one country. The infinite scope within the global community creates great potential in various fields.

Against this backdrop, the department aims to improve the capacity of students to apply their knowledge into the real business practice by studying theoretical methodology to respond appropriately to a dramatically changing business environment caused by globalization.

Department of Social Welfare

■ Educational Goals

Although the exponential economic growth has resulted in an increase in the income level of the people, it has also led to the emergence of new challenges such as low birth rate, aging society, inequality, polarization, family dissolution, multicultural conflict, and mental health problems. In this context, the social demands for social service professionals have increased to prevent and tackle these challenges. In addition to the traditional social welfare organizations, social service workers are active in various organizations such as government agencies(public officials and public institutions), hospitals, businesses, NGOs, military, schools, social enterprises, and civic groups. The Department of Social Welfare aims to nurture social service professionals with skills and knowledge to enhance the quality of human life. Based on a spirit of respect for human life and dignity in line with current trends, the Department educates students on macro social welfare policy and welfare services tailored to target groups such as children, youths, the elderly and the disabled.

Cyber Security & Police(CSP)

■ Educational Goal

The major of Cyber Security and Police covers Police Administration and Information Security together. Its educational goal is to nurture practical experts in the cyber security and criminal investigation sector so they can quickly respond to cyber-related crimes and terrors and protect the intelligence asset of nations, companies and people. The course provides programs for students to be equipped with IT-based capacity of information protection to deal with various types of crimes and attacks occurred in the cyber space and responsibility and expertise as criminal investigators. Based on them, convergence leaders in the security field are trained to be equipped with expertise on cyber law and personal information protection.

Computer & Information Security

■ Educational Goal

The major of Computer and Information Security provides students a practical training where they can study, understand and experience the expertise necessary to themselves become experts in the information security field, instead of just improving their resume and conveying the knowledge.

In this context, the education goal is to experience and share “useful techniques necessary for now” with maximum results, which focus on ultimately operating the existing information security products and services, beyond a futuristic approach focusing on theoretical research and development.

Sports Industry

■ Educational Goal

The sports industry creates added value through goods and services related to sports. In addition, the sports industry is integrated into other industries to create new added value which is expanding globally. In this context, the educational goal of the Department is to nurture global sports professionals by providing the comprehensive theory and scientific knowledge in the sports industry, which contributes to creating new markets and jobs.

Department of Electronic & Robotics Engineering

College of Global Information Technology

The mission of the College of Global Information Technology is to nurture professionals equipped with practical knowledge, supporting them in applying their knowledge in practice. The College educates students about engineering including computer software and intelligent IT with inquiring minds and expertise to contribute to information and industrialization as well as to develop healthy spirit of citizenship in the wake of the rapid development of science and technology.

Division of Computer Software

■ Educational Goal

The Division of Computer Software Convergence aims to nurture convergence-type talents with expertise and skills required for the 4th Industrial Revolution. Based the critical and scholarly attitude, the Division educates students about IT, practical computer skills and statistics to develop the applicable and combinable skills.

Department of Electronics & Robotics Engineering

■ Educational Goal

The Department of Electronics & Robotics Engineering aims to nurture specialists in the electronics and robotics engineering fields, required by sensor-based electronic information communication and AI robot industry. In particular, this technology refers to a study of convergence engineering that enables robots to recognize, judge, and exercise in order to replace human workers with robots in extreme working environments. To make it a reality, the Department educates students about the ability to design convergence systems including machine, electrical and electronic, sensor, control, computer, IT, and visual. The Department also educates students about practical skills required to design and make robots, focusing on practical studies, so that students become electrical engineers, robot specialists, and system engineers needed in space, the extreme working environments and the industrial automation fields. Excellent students can be nurtured as key national experts through the an interdisciplinary Bachelor's and Master's degree.
